Geographical Indications (GIs) are a form of intellectual property that identify goods as originating from a particular geographical region, where a given quality, reputation or other characteristic of the product is essentially attributable to its geographical origin; GIs serve as a guarantee of quality and authenticity for consumers, while also protecting the rights of producers and promoting economic development in specific regions. GIs can cover a wide range of products, including food, agricultural products, handicrafts, and traditional products. They not only provide economic benefits, but also preserve cultural heritage and promote sustainable development through the preservation and promotion of traditional production methods and techniques.
