What is this essay about???

- The main themes of the story "Men Who have Shaved Me" by Stephen Leacock include male camaraderie, the strength of the working class, and the importance of community.
- Leacock's story, nominally about the outrageous things that happen in a barber shop, is really about male bonding and the "education" one receives at the barber shop.
- The theme deals with the idea of 'Social leveling' that implies how the people from all strata of society have to endure the barbers' treatment.
